

I purchased my XM radio about 2 years ago and it has been a joy to have. Due to my job, I have to travel a great deal all over the country and I am away from home for months at a time. Having a radio that delivers a clear signal and provides not only entertainment but important information is very important to me. Since I am driving from state to state it was always difficult to get radio stations in some areas of the country. With my XM radio I no longer have this problem. I feel that it should be my right to be able to have satellite radio available to me and others and that the FCC should do whatever is needed to ensure that it is available with both entertainment and informational stations.
